

6516207821.txt

I wish to protest NAB's efforts to limit XM's (and others) ability to provide "locally oriented" content. Technology has eclipsed NAB's constituency, and they are not able to offer a product that is competitive. This is all due to their own marketing decisions.

If NAB and local broadcasting were serving the public, XM would not be a challenge. Local broadcasting needs to be more aggressive in providing a quality product, rather than whining to "big brother".